55 and over and the law

If you're an owner in a Resident Owned Community, part of your independence includes the right to live in a community where you have some control over its operation. Part of your independence may be the privilege to live in a community designated as a "55 Plus" community.

For a community to be considered "housing for older persons" as a 55 Plus community, the housing must be intended and operated for occupancy by persons 55 years of age or older and must meet the following three requirements:

- 1 -At least 80% of the occupied units are occupied by at least one person 55 years of age or older.
 - Notice that it says "at least" 80%. Some are under the impression that a community MUST allow under 55 individuals to buy or rent if the community currently has more than 80% of units occupied by 55 and older residents. This is incorrect.
 - Notice that it says "occupied". It is the OCCUPANCY that is the issue in maintaining 55 Plus status. So, people can transfer ownership of the unit they occupy to individuals who are younger than 55 years of age. The other side of this issue is that the community is not required to permit the owners to occupy the dwelling should the current occupant leave unless those owners meet all the residency requirements including the age restriction. The community's documents can establish a minimum age for other occupants of the unit

SURPRISE 80TH BIRTHDAY PARTY

On July 14th, George & I drove to the Elm Hurst Inn in Ingersoll, Ontario, to attend Don's (my brother-in-law) retirement party – or so I thought. It turned out to be a belated 80th birthday party for me, arranged by my five children. It totally took me by surprise as Don had spoken about retiring last summer and my birthday was in March. Of course, George knew about the party since last summer as he had to keep the date free.

The party was attended by family from Nova Scotia, Ontario, Alberta, British Columbia and Indiana. It was a wonderful surprise. My daughter, Laurie, made me a quilt with pictures of all my children and their spouses, grandchildren, great grandchildren and step family from myself and two of my daughters. This is a wonderful keepsake. She did an awesome job. Julie was in charge of showing pictures from the past 80 years and providing pictures of the day. It was so nice seeing family I hadn't seen for a number of years. A lot of great memories were made that day.

A week later, on our drive back to Fair Haven, NY, we visited a naval museum in Buffalo. We got to tour "The USS Sullivan (DD537)", a destroyer George served on, along with a tour of a missile cruiser and a submarine. All in all, a remarkable trip!

Cheers, Teresa
